Abstract

This is the second of three papers dealing with records and distribution data of species-level taxa of Chironomidae currently known to occur in Ireland. Information is presented on 226 species-level taxa in the subfamily Orthocladiinae. The majority of the 9,420 records cited have not been published previously.

Key words: Chironomidae, Orthocladiinae, Ireland, records, distribution

Introduction

This is the second of three papers presenting records and distribution data of Chironomidae in Ireland. In Part 1 information was given on 4,360 records of 84 species-level taxa in the subfamilies Buchonomyiinae, Podonominae, Tanypodinae, Telmatogetoninae, Diamesinae and Prodiamesinae (Murray et al., 2013). Data is presented in this work, Part 2, on the distribution in Ireland of 226 species-level taxa in the subfamily Orthocladiinae. The majority of the 9,420 records cited have not been published previously. Background information and details of various publications, theses and reports consulted but not cited in Part 2 is given in Murray et al. (2013).

Record citation format

The taxonomic sequence of genera follows Ashe and O'Connor (2012) and the revised status of some genus-group taxa in Andersen et al. (2013) is adopted. Species are documented alphabetically within genus. Distribution records are cited by County (Fig. 1) and by Hydrometric Area (Fig. 2) since the early life-history stages of the Chironomidae are predominantly aquatic. County names and Hydrometric Area numbers (HA ##) are given in bold capital font. For further explanation of hydrometric areas see Murray et al. (2013). Complementary information provides the water body type and name from which the record derives, district and/or collection site, Irish Grid Reference (in parentheses) given as letter and six figure number where possible, date(s) of record(s), collector and source of record (in parentheses). If the source is a publication, thesis or report it is cited by author and year. Where the source is a personal unpublished record by the collector/determinator then his/her initials are given in parentheses and the "collector" entry is omitted to avoid unnecessary duplication. Where the source is a multi-author citation the initials of the collector/determinator prerdeed the citation.

Orthocladius* (Orthocladius) obumbratus sensu Langton and Visser, 2003

Palaearctic records of the Nearctic O. (O.) obumbratus Johannsen are regarded as doubtful (Spies and Sæther, 2004; Ashe and O'Connor, 2012). The records presented here represent a distinct morphotype and are based on pupal exuviae identified from Langton and Visser (2003) and Langton (1992). Records pre-dating 1992 by Hayes had been determined as Orthocladius pe9 from the earlier work of Langton (1984).

DERRY: HA 3 - R. Bann, Coleraine (C854304), 17 August 2012 (Langton, 2012).

S. amoena has been cited in the Fauna Europaea database (Sæther and Spies, 2005, 2011) as "present" - in Ireland (IE) but absent in Northern Ireland (GB-NI). The source of information for that citation is unknown (M. Spies, pers comm.). The recent record in August 2012 by Langton from Northern Ireland is the only confirmed occurrence of the species from the island of Ireland.
